Here's what past conference attendees have to say about attending a Moebius Syndrome Foundation conference:

“To all first-time conference-goers who have never been to a Moebius conference before, my thoughts are this: If you have not experienced it, GO. Go for the chance to meet so many other people like yourself who have similarities (and differences), for the chance to have unique conversations with kindred people, their families and the chance to create a network.”

– Jon Fisher, Colorado, Moebius Ambassador

“The Moebius Conference is an incredible opportunity for individuals and families to come together to share common experiences and learn from one another! There is so much information specific to our community, which was helpful especially as a new parent looking for answers. But my favorite is always getting to connect with other parents and to see connections made between our children. And my daughters' favorite part is the talent show!”

-Brittini Jones, Oregon

“In 2014, I attended my first Moebius Syndrome Conference in Washington D.C. It was a life changing experience in so many ways! The MSF conference has a little something for everyone – informational sessions, consultations with professional who are familiar with Moebius, opportunities to talk to individuals just like you, and social events that will introduce you to new friends. You won't regret your decision to attend! I look forward to seeing you soon.”

– Steven Maldonado, Member of the MSF Board of Directors
